

Barnard Castle School Chapel

The Chapel and even its peculiar orientation says something about us as a School community. It reflects the diversity of characters, backgrounds, beliefs and interests that we have. Whatever normal is, I suspect that we have precious little of it here in Barney. What we do have is character and values - values espoused by generations of Barnardians, immortalised in stained glass and oak and read daily from the great leather bound Bible that sits on the original lectern. Malcolm McCallum's fascinating history of the Chapel has shed light on the vision, tenacity and generosity that eventually secured for the School community such a special and much loved building.
